

Supply and Demand Notes

The law of demand states that, other things being equal, a higher price leads to a lower quantity demanded.

Equilibrium is the price where quantity demanded equals quantity supplied.

Price Ceilings

A price ceiling is a legal maximum on the price at which a good can be sold.

Rent control is a common example of a price ceiling in housing markets.